rang thro' the land, To arms sprang our fathers the foe to withstand, On Enter'd according to Act of Congress AD. 1844 by Firth & Hall, in the Clerks Office of the Dist Court of the South Dist of New York.

Old Bunker Hill their en-trenchments they rear, When their army is join'd by a young Volun- teer, "Tempt not death" cried his friends, but he bade them Good bye Saying "Oh it is sweet for our country to die!"

The tempest of battle now rages and swells, Mid the thunder of cannons the pealing of bells; And a light, not of battle, il...lumes yonder spire. Scene of woe and de-struction! 'tis Charleston on fire! The young vo-lun-teer heedeth not the sad cry, But whispers "tis sweet for our Country to die!"

foe draweth near; A vol-ley of mus-ket-ry checks their ca-reer, With the dead and the dy-ing the hill-side is strewn, And the shout thro the line is "the day is our own" "Not yet!" cries the young vo-lun-teer "do they fly? Stand firm! Stand firm!

O it is sweet for our coun-try to die! Now our powder is spent - and they ral-ly a-gain; "Re-treat!" says our chief, "since un-
