ARGUMENT.

The story relates the adventure of a young girl, Francesca, whose father is a fencing master. He has educated her as a boy, teaching her fencing among other manly accomplishments. She takes his place as master-at-arms. She loves Fortunio, rightful heir to the throne of Milan. He believes her to be a boy. When the usurping duke and his household magician scheme to remove Fortunio, Francesca accompanies him. Fortunio has been in love with the young Countess Filippa, while the Marchesa Goldoni, a young widow, is enamored of the boyish graces of Francesca. The comedy is supplied by the bankrupt Duke of Milan, who has a private astrologer to whom such fabulous sums have been paid for horoscopes that the ducal exchequer is depleted. The Duke has mortgaged his palace, one room at a time, to the money-lenders of Milan. Subsequently the Duke employs a band of Venetian bravos to suppress Fortunio, the bravos being a regularly organized stock company conducted in a strictly business-like manner. The first act ends with the departure of Fortunio and Francesca to Venice on a political mission.

The second act shows Venice by moonlight, and the finale represents the historic ceremony of the marriage with the Adriatic, an elaborate stage pageant, historically accurate, the Bucentaur or golden barge being an exact copy of the original royal craft. Filippa is sent to Venice to be married, but Fortunio plans to elope with her and trusts Francesca with the secret. In her jealousy of Fortunio Francesca betrays the plan to his rival, Guido, who carries off Filippa. Discovering Francesca's treachery, Fortunio provokes a duel with her, wounds the supposed youth, and compels her to reveal her identity. Fortunio is arrested by the Duke, and is about to be taken to a Venetian dungeon when Francesca declares herself to be the real traitor and is led away in his place.

In the third act Francesca escapes from prison in a woman's dress provided by the Marchesa, who still believes her to be a man. Filippa gives a fete at which she is to announce the name of her future husband. Fortunio has an appointment with her, but Francesca, provided with a mask and domino like Filippa's, takes the place of the countess, and learns from Fortunio that he really loves Francesca and not Filippa. The Duke and Pasquino are driven from Milan, while Fortunio is restored to the throne of his ancestors.

The piano part features eighth-note chords and sixteenth-note patterns. Dynamics include rall. and ff. Measures 1 through 4 show a rhythmic pattern with eighth-note chords. Measures 5 through 8 continue the pattern with dynamics like rall. and ff. Measures 9 through 12 conclude the section with eighth-note chords and sixteenth-note patterns.

The sheet music consists of five staves of musical notation for piano, arranged in two systems. The first system starts with a treble clef, a key signature of one flat, and a 2/4 time signature. It includes dynamic markings f, Ped., \ Læd.*, \ simile.*, and brillante.. The second system begins with a bass clef, a key signature of one sharp, and a 2/4 time signature. It includes dynamic markings ff and con brio. The notation features various note heads, stems, and beams, with some notes having three vertical stems. Measure numbers 1 through 10 are indicated at the beginning of each staff.

The image shows five staves of musical notation for piano, arranged vertically. The top three staves are in common time (indicated by a 'C') and the bottom two are in 2/4 time (indicated by a '2/4'). The key signature changes frequently, including sections in B-flat major, A major, and G major. The notation includes various note heads, stems, and bar lines. The first staff features sixteenth-note patterns with grace marks. The second staff has eighth-note chords. The third staff includes sixteenth-note patterns with grace marks. The fourth staff has eighth-note chords. The fifth staff has eighth-note chords. Measure numbers 1 through 10 are present above the staves. The word 'simile.' appears in the upper right area of the page.

This musical score consists of four staves. The top two staves are for voices (Soprano and Alto/Tenor), and the bottom two staves are for piano. The music is in common time, with a key signature of one sharp (F#). The vocal parts enter in pairs, with the piano providing harmonic support. The lyrics describe a soldier's valor and the futility of war. The piano part features rhythmic patterns and dynamic markings like 'ff rall.' and 'rall. molto'.

A musical score for three voices and piano. The top voice (Soprano) sings 'Fa la la la la!' in a decrescendo from forte to piano, with a dynamic marking 'rall.' above the notes. The middle voice (Alto) and basso continuo (B.C.) provide harmonic support. The piano part features sustained chords and rhythmic patterns. The vocal parts are written in soprano, alto, and bass staves.
