sky of our life be by sor- row o'er- cast; There is fol- ly to pine if we tread on a thorn; There are joy in that love, tho' it be old in years, And its ro- ses a- round to be gath- er'd at will, With their wings can- not spread_ they are sprin- kled with tears! The tint and the o- dor they gen- tly dis- til. The world is as cold as those bright float- ing isles, That dews that come down with the moon's mel- low light, Are hor---row the sun--beams and seem to wear smiles; Let us no--thing but tears from the eye--lids of night; So the
